Teamwrkx Construction Welcomes New Senior Project Manager Todd Bennett; Bennett's LEED® AP Certification Will Help Teamwrkx Build Green Business

San Jose, Calif. -- Teamwrkx Construction has hired Todd Bennett as the newest Senior Project Manager to help sustain the company through an expected growth phase. Todd's responsibilities will include estimation and project management with an emphasis on business development. He will focus on extending the Teamwrkx client base through competitive pricing, timely project completion, original engineering decisions and custom strategies for new structures and shell retrofits. Todd received his LEED® Accredited Professional certification this year.

"Todd has a knack for visualizing projects from start to finish and we're confident his experience will enable him to make the most effective recommendations and decisions for both Teamwrkx and our clients. We're happy to have him on our team," said Teamwrkx CEO Eric Venzon.

Todd has been involved in the carpentry and construction industries for nearly thirty years. Prior to joining Teamwrkx, he was Senior Project Manager for C&J Contracting, Inc. and Concrete Structures, where he used his field, industrial, commercial and concrete background to manage multifaceted projects and processes, ranging from shells to interiors. Previously, Todd worked with Picerne Construction and Largo Concrete, among others. He received his Construction Management Degree from San Diego State University and is a member of both the United States Green Building Council and the American Society of Professional Estimators.
